

6 WAYS PROGRAM DIRECTORS AND CBD TEAMS CAN BENEFIT FROM THEIR CBME LEAD

Recommended by Lisa St-Amant, National CBME Leads Chair

1

We help you adapt the national CBD standards to your local context

2

We are your liaison with the Royal College

3

We can direct you to helpful resources and learning events

4

We work with programs to evaluate all aspects of CBME curricula, assessment tools and frameworks for the purpose of quality assurance and improvement

5

We consult with educational technology personnel to integrate systems in support of CBME

6

We can advocate to postgraduate deans for improved program supports

Each of our 17 Canadian medical schools has at least one representative, called a CBME lead, who supports programs as they implement Competence by Design (CBD). Your school's lead is your designated go-to resource for all things CBD. In addition to supporting and guiding you through the implementation process, your lead can help locate targeted CBD resources, connect you with programs that have had challenges like yours, or simply answer any questions.